NEW CAPITOL BIDS

THE ELECTION OF THE HOUSE STRUCTURE OF THE BUILDING.

ALL AFTERNOON REQUIRED

NEW ONE MAY BE REVISED THROUGH THE MORNING SESSION.

NEW ONE HAS BEEN MADE ON

The New York Times in December

Notwithstanding the fact that the bidding for the new Capitol building has not yet been concluded, the situation is improving, and it is expected that a definite decision will be reached soon. The bidding process has been complicated by a number of factors, including the high cost of materials and labor, as well as the need to ensure that the building is of the highest possible quality. The bidding process has also been slowed by the need to ensure that the building is in keeping with the style and architecture of the existing Capitol building. The bidding process has also been complicated by the fact that the building is located in a highly developed area, and there is a great deal of pressure to ensure that the building is completed as quickly as possible. However, the situation is improving, and it is expected that a decision will be reached soon.
